Ink Manufacturers and Suppliers Gather for NAPIM's 2022 Spring Convention April 8–11

(Annapolis, MD) — The National Association of Printing Ink Manufacturers (NAPIM) will host its 2022 Spring Convention April 8–11 at The Vinoy® Renaissance St. Petersburg Resort & Golf Club in St. Petersburg, FL. The association is looking forward to being back together again after a two-year hiatus. Much is planned for this year's event, including presentations from some of the industry's most acclaimed speakers.

Attendees can look forward to hearing from well-respected orator Billy Riggs and his keynote presentation "Magic of Change & Sustainability."

"This is a year of change, not only for NAPIM but how we conduct business as an industry. I am looking forward to our powerful lineup of speakers and sessions where we will glean transformative information that is essential to sustaining growth and profitability for our member companies," says John Copeland, Executive Director through April 2022.

Other highlights include NAPIM's Annual Awards Dinner on Sunday, April 10. This ceremony is a black-tie event, and it will honor the service, dedication, and commitment made on behalf of members of the printing ink industry. The deadline to nominate a deserving candidate is March 11, 2022.

A series of informative business sessions and plenty of opportunities to network and participate in offsite excursions abound.

"After having to postpone NAPIM's in-person events, we will use this time together to learn from one another. Our program includes some outstanding speakers from the printing ink industry. Also beneficial will be the State of the Industry Report, where we will analyze current and future sales data, drivers of market growth, and successes of our member companies," says incoming Executive Director Molly Alton Mullins.
